See what it could be like to design and curate your own museum using items you can find on kimyo!

- 1) First, select up to 10 items from kimyo that you would like in your ideal museum. These can be from different locations and different categories
- 2) Now, organise your items into at least two different groups – these groups will be the different galleries within your museum.

Think about why you have grouped these items together – what do they have in common? What links them together?

- 3) Explain, in a sentence or two, why you have grouped these items together
- 4) Next, think of a name for each of these groups – these will be the names of your galleries within your exhibition
- 5) Now, think of a name and a location for your museum – where would it be? What kind of building/location would it be in? How would you encourage visitors to your museum?

Extension tasks:

- a) Design the outside of your museum building – what would it look like? How would people get to your museum? What makes it different from other museums?
- b) Create an information booklet about your museum – this could include a picture of the museum, a map of the location, details of the exhibits that visitors would find inside, entrance costs (if any), and any other information that you think a visitor, or potential visitor, would need to know.
